The Protest and Request for Reconsideration Processes: General Procedures

Resolution by Mutual Agreement

Protests may be resolved by mutual agreement at any time in the protest process utilizing any of the allowable methods for resolution.

Allowable Methods for Resolving Protests

The methods available for resolution of a protest whether by mutual agreement, or decision of the head of a purchasing agency or by the decision of the chief procurement officer in the case of a request for consideration can be one or any combination of the following:

- a) Amending or canceling the request for proposals;
- b) If a contract has been awarded, terminating the contract or declaring the contract null and void from the time of its award;
- c) Initiating a new process to award the contract either by reopening the evaluation process or issuing a new procurement;
- d) Affirming the purchasing agencies decision; or
- e) Dismissing the protestor's protest

Conduct of the Head of the Purchasing Agency and Communication with the Head of the Purchasing Agency

During the resolution of a protest the head of a purchasing agency acts as an impartial party. If the head of the purchasing agency cannot be impartial due to a conflict of interest or other good cause, the head designates another state employee to act in his or her place.

Neither the protestor nor the procurement officer in charge of the protested procurement may communicate with the head of the purchasing agency on matters regarding the protest without first informing the other party. The head of the purchasing agency may not communicate with either the protestor or the procurement officer for the protested procurement as to the merits of the protest without first informing the other.

Suspension of Award

Once a Notice of Protest has been submitted within the required timeframe, the award is suspended and no further action to make the award may be taken including but not limited to:

- a) Execution of a contract
- b) Delivery of services in anticipation of execution of a contract
- c) Negotiations or discussions with a provider regarding an intended award or contract.

In certain circumstances, the chief procurement officer may waive the suspension of award based on the following:

- a) Award of the contract without delay is necessary to protect the health, safety or welfare of a person from an imminent and serious threat;
- b) Brief factual description of the current situation, and how a delay would create an imminent and serious threat;
- c) A determination that the purchasing agency's lack of planning has not caused the necessity of the award delay;
- d) A determination that the waiver of suspension has not been granted in order to frustrate the fair and speedy resolution of the protest.
